Hey! What's this? (<https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//dailycoyote.blogspot.com/2008/07/he-helps-with-chores.html>).

First full week back at work started eight minutes ago. We'll see how this goes, and if Mom lets me come back after my PT.

Good Luck on your first day back!

Just barely before the movers came and went. My stuff should be there Wednesday morning. 0.0

It appears cleanup is an important part of meal prep for Coyotes.

Mom will let you come back. Because I bet she's already given you the "I trust you to know your own limits and be smart about them" speech, which causes one to wither with shame like a time-lapse fading daffodil if one has, in fact, been pushing one's self too hard. 8>)

So is the ability to wash dishes something canids lose as they become domesticated? Because the dog is no help at all there, once he's licked the plates clean. As far as he's concerned, that's all it takes, and this running water nonsense has no place in a respectable home.

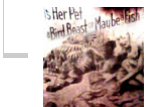

He did help out by eating the remains of the corn on the cob for us last night, though.

Hey, Platypus--don't I owe you dinner from, like, six months ago? (There was a "Wallet? What wallet?" moment involved.) Want to collect on that after work?

Rain check? By quitting time I'm going to be really up for going home, I think. But thanks!

You'll want to be able to stay awake for Letterman, it's true. The Mythbusters gang is guesting!

Hey, there's also a new Top Gear. Mmmmm, Top Gear...

Good Eats, Mythbusters, and now Top Gear. I knew there was a reason I liked you people. ;)

Glad you're feeling better, coyote. :) I'd offer to cook something for you, but since my version of cooking is sticking it in the microwave and praying it doesn't boil over or explode I figure you're better off on you own. ;)

So do you want to tell him that we're going to see The Dark Knight a second time this weekend, and he's coming, dammit, even if he stood us up tonight?

Oh, I don't know. I have to cook, and clean my ~~pit of filth~~ apartment, and there are errands and stuff piled up like you wouldn't believe.

So we'll go to the movie, and then you can come over and use my kitchen, and I'll help you clean. I'm not doing anything on Saturday.

Not sure I could haul all that stuff up the stairs afterwards--

Oh hush. You're coming to the movie, and then I'm buying you lunch at the Indian buffet. And then we will take you grocery shopping and help you carry the stuff upstairs and do your laundry and stuff, and then you can huddle in your den and sulk all you want on Sunday.

Oz has spoken. Live with it.

O hai. My mom, who has two bionic knees, says that sleep is the final exercise in her PT regime. Or as Stephen Maturin would have it, "healthful, roborative sleep." So don't feel bad if you can't quite keep your eyes open afterward.

Full days of work? Sounds like good progress is being made. Congratulations!

matociquala recently mentioned the new tor.com website; I went to check it out and found this gem (Science that made me smile) that made me think of you. So, if you're feeling particularly down on yourself one of these days, just remember that the platypus is put together from a strange - and wonderful - set of instructions.
